1.1 EXTRACT A

[Miss Maudie and Scout are having a conversation about Boo Radley.]

'Do you think they're true, all those things they say about B – Mr Arthur?'

'What things?'

I told her.

'That is three-fourths coloured folks and one-fourth Stephanie Crawford,' said Miss Maudie grimly. 'Stephanie Crawford even told me once she woke up in the middle of the night and found him looking in the window at her. I said what did you do, Stephanie, move over in the bed and make room for him? That shut her up a while.'

I was sure it did. Miss Maudie's voice was enough to shut anybody up.

'No, child,' she said, 'that is a sad house. I remember Arthur Radley when he was a boy. He always spoke nicely to me, no matter what folks said he did. Spoke as nicely as he knew how.'

'You reckon he's crazy?'

Miss Maudie shook her head. 'If he's not he should be by now. The things that happen to people we never really know. What happens in houses behind closed doors, what secrets – '

'Atticus don't ever do anything to Jem and me in the house that he don't do in the yard,' I said, feeling it my duty to defend my parent.

'Gracious child, I was ravelling a thread, wasn't even thinking about your father, but now that I am I'll say this: Atticus Finch is the same in his house as he is on the public streets.'

[Chapter 5]

EXTRACT B

[Atticus questions Bob Ewell in court.]

"Up on that side of the face Sheriff please repeat what you said it was her right eye I said –"
"Thank you, Bert," said Atticus. 'You heard it again, Mr Ewell. Do you have anything to add to it? Do you agree with the sheriff?'
'I holds with Tate. Her eye was blackened and she was mighty beat up.'
The little man seemed to have forgotten his previous humiliation from the bench. It was becoming evident that he thought Atticus an easy match. He seemed to grow ruddy again; his chest swelled, and once more he was a red little rooster. I thought he'd burst his shirt at Atticus's next question.
'Mr Ewell, can you read and write?'
Mr Gilmer interrupted. 'Objection,' he said. 'Can't see what witness's literacy has to do with the case, irrelevant 'n' immaterial.'
Judge Taylor was about to speak but Atticus said, 'Judge, if you'll allow the question plus another one you'll soon see.'
'All right, let's see,' said Judge Taylor, 'but make sure we see, Atticus. Overruled.'
Mr Gilmer seemed as curious as the rest of us as to what bearing the state of Mr Ewell's education had on the case.
"I'll repeat the question,' said Atticus. 'Can you read and write?'
'I most positively can.'
'Will you write your name and show us?'
'I most positively will. How do you think I sign my relief cheques?'

2.1 EXTRACT C

[Jack arrives with a group of boys on the beach.]

---

The boy who controlled them was dressed in the same way though his cap badge was golden. When his party was about ten yards from the platform he shouted an order and they halted, gasping, sweating, swaying in the fierce light. The boy himself came forward, vaulted on to the platform with his cloak flying, and peered into what to him was almost complete darkness.

'Where's the man with the trumpet?'
Ralph, sensing his sun-blindness, answered him.
'There's no man with a trumpet. Only me.'

The boy came close and peered down at Ralph, screwing up his face as he did so. What he saw of the fair-haired boy with the creamy shell on his knees did not seem to satisfy him. He turned quickly, his black cloak circling.

'Isn't there a ship, then?'
Inside the floating cloak he was tall, thin, and bony; and his hair was red beneath the black cap. His face was crumpled and freckled, and ugly without silliness. Out of this face stared two light blue eyes, frustrated now and turning, or ready to turn, to anger.

'Isn't there a man here?'
Ralph spoke to his back.

'No. We're having a meeting. Come and join in.'

The group of cloaked boys began to scatter from close line. The tall boy shouted at them.

'Choir! Stand still!' [Chapter 1]

'You were outside. Outside the circle. You never really came in. Didn't you see what we – what they did?'
There was loathing, and at the same time a kind of feverish excitement in his voice.
'Didn't you see, Piggy?'
'Not all that well. I only got one eye now. You ought to know that, Ralph.'
Ralph continued to rock to and fro.
'It was an accident,' said Piggy suddenly, 'that's what it was. An accident.' His voice shrilled again. 'Coming in the dark – he hadn't no business crawling like that out of the dark. He was batty. He asked for it.' He gesticulated widely again. 'It was an accident.'
'You didn't see what they did –'
'Look, Ralph. We got to forget this. We can't do no good thinking about it, see?'

[Gikonyo goes to see the new MP]

| A crowd of people waited outside the office of the MP because he was not in. But people were used to broken appointments and broken promises. Sometimes they would keep on coming, day after day, without seeing their representative. |
| 'It is like trying to meet God,' one woman complained. |
| 'Why, what do you want to ask him?' |
| 'My son wants a scholarship to America. And you?' |
| 'It's just troubles at home. Last Saturday, they came and arrested my man because he has not paid taxes. But how does he pay poll tax? He has no job. Our two children have had to leave school because no money …' |
| Some people had come for land problems, others for advice in their marriage problems, and yet others were a delegation to seek the support of the MP in applying for a secondary school in their ridge. |
| 'Our children have nowhere to go after their primary schools,' one of the elders was explaining. |
| After an hour or so, the MP arrived; he was dressed in a dark suit and carried a leather portfolio. He smoked a pipe. He greeted all the people like a father or a headmaster his children. He went into the office without apologising. People went in one by one. |
| Gikonyo's heart was beating with hope. If only they could get this loan! |

[Act 2 Scene 2]

| ROMEO: (to Juliet) I take thee at thy word:                  | JULIET: What man art thou that, thus bescreened in night, | ROMEO: By a name |
| Call me but love, and I'll be new baptized.                  | So stumblest on my counsel?                             | I know not how to tell thee who I am. |
| Henceforth I never will be Romeo.                            |                                                         | My name, dear saint, is hateful to myself |

| ROMEO: I have night's cloak to hide me from their eyes,       | JULIET: My ears have yet not drunk a hundred words      | JULIET: How cam'st thou hither, tell me, and wherefore? |
|                                                              | Of thy tongue's uttering, yet I know the sound.         | The orchard walls are high and hard to climb,     |
|                                                              | Art thou not Romeo, and a Montague?                     | And the place death, considering who thou art,    |
| ROMEO: With love's light wings did I o'erperch these walls,  | JULIET: If they do see thee, they will murder thee.     | If any of my kinsmen find thee here.              |
| For stony limits cannot hold love out,                        | ROMEO: Alack, there lies more peril in thine eye        |                                                      |

| Therefore thy kinsmen are no stop to me.                      | ROMEO: And I am proof against their enmity.             |                                                      |

4.2 EXTRACT H

[Friar Laurence reveals the truth.]

FRIAR: I will be brief, for my short date of breath
Is not so long as is a tedious tale.
Romeo, there dead, was husband to that Juliet;
And she, there dead, that Romeo's faithful wife.
I married them, and their stolen marriage day
Was Tybalt's doomsday, whose untimely death
Banished the new-made bridegroom from this city,
For whom, and not for Tybalt, Juliet pined.
You, to remove that siege of grief from her,
Betrothed and would have married her perforce
To County Paris. Then comes she to me,
And with wild looks bid me devise some mean
To rid her from this second marriage,
Or in my cell there would she kill herself.
Then gave I her – so tutored by my art –
A sleeping potion; which so took effect
As I intended, for it wrought on her
The form of death. Meantime I writ to Romeo
That he should hither come as this dire night
To help to take her from her borrowed grave,
Being the time the potion's force should cease.
But he which bore my letter, Friar John,
Was stayed by accident, and yesternight
Returned my letter back. Then all alone
At the prefixèd hour of her waking,
Came I to take her from her kindred's vault;
Meaning to keep her closely at my cell
Till I conveniently could sent to Romeo.
But when I came, some minute ere the time
Of her awakening, here untimely lay
The noble Paris and true Romeo dead.

[Sipho reveals the truth about the affair.]

| MANDISA: | What did my father do to you? What happened between the two of you? |
| SIPHO: | He never told you? |
| MANDISA: | No! This is crap. I can't stay here any longer. I am going out to dinner. Even if I have to go alone. Both women start to exit. |
| SIPHO: | Stop! No one leaves this house. You want to know the truth? You want to know why I fought your father? You want to know why your mother left me? Left an eighteen-month-old baby in my hands and walked away and never came back? |
| THANDO and MANDISA: | Yes! |
| SIPHO: | Themba was sleeping with my wife. |
| MANDISA: | What! |
| SIPHO: | Your father was sleeping with my wife, your mother! |
| THANDO: | No! No! |
| MANDISA: | This has gone too far! It's not true, it's not true! I don't believe you! My father would never do such a thing. He was loyal to my mother – always. |
| SIPHO: | That's what you think. Themba was good at making people believe in him. |
| THANDO: | Oh my God! |
| SIPHO: | The truth, the whole truth and Nothing but the Truth, so help me God. That's what you've asked for. So sit down and take it like the adults you both claim to be. I came home early from work that day. I wasn't feeling well. I had the flu. My head was pounding. |

NOTE: Answer the questions set on BOTH extracts, i.e. QUESTION 6.1 AND QUESTION 6.2.

'THE LUNCHEON'

6.1 Extraction K

[The writer recalls his first meeting with the woman.]

"Well, it's many years since we first met. How time does fly! We're none of us getting any younger. Do you remember the first time I saw you? You asked me to luncheon.'

Did I remember?

It was twenty years ago and I was living in Paris. I had a tiny apartment in the Latin Quarter overlooking a cemetery, and I was earning barely enough money to keep body and soul together. She had read a book of mine and had written to me about it. I answered, thanking her, and presently I received from her another letter saying that she was passing through Paris and would like to have a chat with me; but her time was limited, and the only free moment she had was on the following Thursday; she was spending the morning at the Luxembourg and would I give her a little luncheon at Foyot's afterwards? Foyot's is a restaurant at which the French senators eat, and it was so far beyond my means that I had never even thought of going there. But I was flattered, and I was too young to have learned to say no to a woman.

6.1.1 The writer meets the woman for the second time.

(a) Where does the writer meet the woman for the second time? (1)

(b) How does the writer feel at this meeting? Explain why he feels this way. (3)

(a) Choose the correct answer to complete the following sentence. Write only the letter (A–D) next to the question number (6.1.2(a)) in the ANSWER BOOK.

A remembers very well.
B does not remember.
C is not sure he remembers.
D is trying to remember.

(b) Explain why he feels this way.

6.1.3 In lines 11–13 (‘she was spending … at Foyot's afterwards?’) the woman requests that they meet at Foyot's.

(a) Explain why the woman chooses Foyot's for their luncheon.

(b) Using your OWN words, give TWO reasons why the writer does not object to her choice of restaurant.

6.1.4 State ONE reaction of the writer on seeing the woman for the FIRST time and illustrate this with an example.

6.1.5 Name ONE item the writer ordered at the restaurant.

6.1.6 Explain the irony in this story.

6.1.7 In your opinion, how is the fact that the woman in this short story is a manipulative character, conveyed to the reader?

AND RELATIVES'

6.2 EXTRACT L

[The narrator is alone with the two young men.]

On my way down to the Cape, Georgie Abrahams had joked about committing murder. This time there was no such threat – towards me anyway. But for every dark kilometre to Jo’burg I felt that my home city was moving further and further away.

‘You!’ I looked down from the bunk. It was the elder brother who was demanding my attention.

‘Ja,’ I answered as casually as my voice would allow.

‘Are you not Aunty Ria’s child – grandchild?’

‘Yes!’ I could not believe my ears. Aunty Ria, as they called her, was indeed my grandmother and the mother of my own mother.

‘I knew it was you when I saw you,’ he said, not smiling but with some friendliness in his voice. His brother stared up at me with some interest.

‘You’re that clever boy who used to read books and write stuff, hey?’

‘Yes, but who are you?’

‘Me ‘n him we Aunty Visa’s grandchildren.’

Aunty Visa was my granny’s sister.

‘Then we’re cousins!’ I said. This wasn’t quite true but I was desperate to be as closely related to them as possible.

When their food arrived they insisted that I join them. And I did, for suddenly my appetite had returned.

I had forgotten all about my chance encounter with my two delinquent relatives until the other day, three years later.

I opened the newspaper and read a report about rampant gang crime in the streets of Western Township and adjacent Coronationville. The article spoke of streets running with the blood of gangsters, the death of innocents caught in the crossfire, the revenge killings, the tragic futility of it all.

6.2.1 Refer to lines 1–2 (‘On my way … about committing murder’).

(a) Explain why the narrator goes 'down to the Cape'. State TWO points.

(b) State TWO reasons why the narrator believed that Georgie Abrahams 'had joked about committing murder'.

6.2.2 Refer to lines 5–7 (‘You! I looked … voice would allow’).

(a) Why are the two boys on this train?

(b) Although the narrator uses a casual tone in line 7, he is experiencing a different emotion. Name this emotion.

(c) Give a reason for your answer to QUESTION 6.2.2(b).
6.2.3 Explain why the following statement is TRUE.

The atmosphere between the two boys and the narrator changes after the conversation in the extract. Give TWO points of evidence from the extract. (2)

(a) Identify the figure of speech in line 25 ('streets running with the blood of gangsters'). (1)

(b) Identify and discuss the theme evident in these lines. (4)
